The story behind El Arepazo

El Arepazo is Spanish for "The Big Arepa" and Carlos Gutierrez and Eliezer Molina thought up the idea for an authentic Latin American Restaurant after experiencing success at the "Festival Latino" where they sold their hand made arepas - the grilled corn flour discs are a staple in their native Venezuela.

Arepas are still hand made on the premises - as is all the food served at El Arepazo. "Good food takes time to prepare," says Señor Molina proudly. "We wanted to be different," adds Señor Gutierrez, "our chicken, beef and pork are slow cooked and shredded by hand. Nothing is frozen - all our food is freshly prepared - from the meat to the beans." It's a difference you'll notice the first time you try any of the dishes served at El Arepazo. Also be sure to try the House Cilantro Sauce when you order.

In addition to their signature Arepas and Empanadas, El Arepazo will be offering regional specialties from Argentina, Columbia, Mexico and Cuba - as well as daily specials. Be sure to ask about them when you call or stop by!
